c. £30,000 + bonus + car allowance
S W London

We are looking for high calibre graduates with at least one year's business experience to join our team of consultants and to make a real contribution to the successful growth of our company.

Metapraxi client projects are demanding, bringing management information to life for the senior executives of some of the world's largest companies. Our consultants work on fast-acting analytical assignments which deliver cost-effective answers to clients' questions about their past, current and future business performance. They also train client personnel in the fundamentals of business management, utilising unique web-based techniques created by our in-house team of developers.

Our supporting software tools, Empower and the Business Flight Simulator, have been widely acclaimed. We have current partnerships with leading organisations including CIMA (The Chartered Institute of Management Accountants) and we are developing new opportunities with training providers and academic institutions.

We are currently looking for high calibre graduates who can show that they have a real interest in business. An intensive training course will provide technical, financial and interpersonal skills, and you will be assigned to active project work as soon as you qualify. Working at senior management level, you will gain a deep understanding of the business issues facing our client companies. You will relish the responsibility of working with client Board directors at a very early stage in your career.

Metapraxi is an unconventional organisation in which original thinking is valued as well as hard work, intelligence and commitment. If you are looking for a career that is out of the ordinary and one in which your own special talents will be recognised, we may be the right company for you.

You must have strong numeracy and literacy skills with 3 A grades at A-level or equivalent, well developed IT skills and a First or 2:1 Honours degree in any serious academic subject. As well as demonstrating an interest in business, your CV should show leadership skills, self reliance and the ability to work in a team.

Please look at our websites below and send your full CV (with subjects and grades) together with an accompanying letter explaining what interests you about the prospect of a career with Metapraxi. All candidates must have a valid UK work permit or be entitled to work in the UK indefinitely. Closing date: 30th March 2010.
